HIGH CONFLICT PARENTING CASES IN FAMILY LAW

Whilst the Family Law Courts are characterised by conflict between parents, the Courts' primary considerations are always the best interests of the children and their protection from harm, rather than the entitlements of their parents. The recent case of Morgan & Carter provides an example of the type of complex and emotionally charged dispute that the Family Law Courts are tasked with adjudicating and the difficult decisions they make in doing so.

COST-EFFECTIVE RESOLUTION OF COMMERCIAL DISPUTES IN THE COUNTY COURT OF VICTORIA

Are you involved in a commercial dispute or wish to pursue a debtor for a large sum of money? You have a choice of jurisdiction but that does not necessarily mean that both jurisdictions are as equally beneficial to your case. Generally, we have seen a considerable shift in clients electing to issue proceedings in the County Court of Victoria.

ADVERSE POSSESSION CLAIMS: QUESTION: WHEN IS A ROAD NOT A ROAD? ANSWER: WHEN IT IS A LANEWAY

Adverse possession claims in residential areas tend to fall into two categories. The first, is where the fence line is misaligned with the title boundary. The second is where your property has enclosed an old laneway, disused road or even upon old creek lines. Generally the first involves claiming the land against your neighbour. The second can often be against the local council or the person who originally subdivided the area and is now dead.
